Reports of Russian Wheat Shortage Declared Authentic Despite Denials

SOVIET FACES NECESSITY OF BUYING GRAIN

Failure to Deliver Would Cause Tension in Consumers, is View

Canadian Press
TORONTO, Nov. 7.—The Toronto Globe, as a sequel to a Paris cable of Nov. 2 in which it European correspondent quoted M. Drogobatz, Russian ambassador to France, as declaring that the Soviet Union will not export wheat, has today published the following cable from the same correspondent:

"The interview with M. Drogobatz, Russian ambassador to France, regarding the Russian wheat situation was completed by definite declaration that Soviet wheat dumped in several European countries, including England and Quebec was of such inferior quality as to make milling virtually impossible."

OFFICIAL SOURCES

"First indication of this came to me from a Canadian official in Paris, which naturally are keeping careful watch on wheat when it comes to the Soviet Union."

"When subsequently I put my inquiries to the Soviet ambassador, his delegation for confirmation of denial."

"I was taken to the Soviet ambassador, who denied that the quality of Soviet wheat was inferior to that of the United States."

MORE ABOUT MONEY BY-LAWS

When paying is completed on this avenue it will serve as a paved throughway to the West End and draw the traffic of Jasper avenue. It is better to give work than direct relief, particularly when this work can be carried to completion as advantageously as is possible at this time."

Mr. C. Gerald O'Connor, C.G.A.: "The city must progress, and to progress it is necessary for the burgesses to support the money by-law. It is a good stroke of business to spend money on improvements as outlined in the by-laws, always keeping in mind that the money must go down in the ground that later may not be increased, and that the support of the burgesses is essential."

Mr. E. Leitch, Independent: "If the money by-law passes this year they will have employment in many more than in the last year. It is for this reason more than other that I urge burgesses to support the money by-law."

Mr. H. Ainsley, Labor: "I am in favor of the money by-law which will be submitted to the burgesses on election day, and would urge all citizens to give their strong support. The improvements outlined in the by-law will give employment, and in addition to this is the fact that the work will be done before the winter weather sets in."

Mr. E. Leitch, Independent: "I am glad to hear that the money by-law will be submitted to the burgesses on election day, and would urge all citizens to give their strong support. MAN IS FOUND SHOOTING HIS ROOMING HOUSE

Fred Elkhoff Tells Police John Plot Shot Him Accidentally

Police received a call at 1:30 p.m. Friday from a Westmounter living at 101 street that a man had been shot.

City detective, rushing to the scene, found a bullet had struck the chest of Fred Elkhoff, who was sitting in a chair a few feet away.

Elkhoff said he was sitting in a chair a few feet away from a rooming house when he was shot.

FIRE MARRIED WOMEN, SAYS SID PARSONS

Labour Alderman Candidate Would Start at City Hall

Emphatic advocacy of a policy in the administration of employment in these times no married woman husband was working and providing an equitable living for his wife and family featured the address of Sidney Parsons, Labour alderman candidate, at the King Edward school on Saturday.

He asked as to whether this policy would apply to a married woman belonging to a Democratic of the first rank, who declared that it went unreservedly for all married women—always with the proviso that the husband was making sufficient to keep them and their children comfortably.

There are some of these women at the city hall," he said, "and I've got my eye on them."

He suggested this last policy as a returned soldier who had spent four years in France with the 4th Battalion of the Canadian Trenchers.

PREPARE NOW FOR THE COLD MONTHS

Winter may come sweeping down upon us anytime now, without warning. But who cares, so long as the home is all fixed up snug and warm ready to withstand the assaults of snow, wind and low temperatures? It makes such a difference when we prepare for things we know are certain to come. If one keeps on postponing the necessary work of attending to storm windows, furnaces, and other things until taken by surprise, not only inconvenience and discomfort, but actual suffering can follow. The thing to do is to get on the phone right away and arrange for the work to be done immediately. The phone numbers of the various services are all on this page. Run yours over, then, they will put you into direct touch with the best in town.

THE GARDENER

It was my pleasure and privilege to discuss matters of the horticultural nature with the late Mr. W. K. Newton and his law will be kindly felt by all who knew him, in fact, the province generally. A horticulturist in particular have lost a very fine gentleman and I am sure our deepest sympathy goes out to the loved one he leaves behind to mourn his untimely death.

Those of my readers who have not yet taken the necessary steps to protect their rose trees for the winter should do so without delay and as I have already seen several cases of pruning trees at this time, I would strongly advise all and sundry to refrain from cutting the wood in any shape or form at this time of the year.

With the trees up with plain gold and any branches that project above this should be left exactly as they are. Pruning them simply opens up an avenue for the frost, to penetrate to the root system and kill the plant.

Sunday, November 1, will long be remembered, for a more beautiful day would be hard to imagine and while there may be finer days in some places I do not wish to see them, for last Sunday was good enough for anything.

I have mentioned before in this column that there are several varieties of vegetable seeds that may be sown even now, which will usually come through the winter and get away to a good start much earlier in the spring than if planted in the usual way.

Parsnips, lettuce and the variety of onion known as the winter onion will usually prove successful if this method of fall planting is followed.

The Horticultural Society are now particularly busy rekindling the plan for the 1932 season and every person interested should now consider any recommendations they have to make to the directors on this matter.

It may be that your particular suggestion will be for a unworkable, yet your cooperation is cordially invited and any ideas that may be for the general improvement will, I am sure, be welcomed.

The society will arrange for a series of talks, my lectures on horticultural subjects during the winter, and all my readers who can manage to attend these will benefit something that will be worth while, so make an effort to attend.

Quite a few enquiries are coming to hand as to the treatment of house plants during the winter and this is a question upon which a great deal may be said.

Personally I am convinced that very few house plants are properly equipped to grow house plants success fully and the best that can be done is to apply to carry a few miserable granitums, etc. through with sufficient life left in them to plant outside next spring.

The lack of moisture in the atmosphere is the greatest difficulty and where, as it used for heating, the trouble seems to be intensified and about the only plant I can carry along in decent shape indoors is the Boston Fern, and the two varieties of spider plant, Flamingo and Spider plant.

This year I find potting up young plants somewhat in doubt and skimming them outdoors where they did remarkably well and were showing fine trunks of bloom, but on being moved indoors when the frosty nights came they immediately began to fall. They will look nice and even, but are weak and straggling with no bloom, and I am sure convinced that it is the high temperature combined with the lack of humidity that causes them to fall. Here and there I see some decent specimens, but they are always in houses that do not use gas, and where the temperature can be kept below 60 degrees.

I have grown fine specimens of Primula, Gloxinia, Anemone and other indoor plants before, in other places, so it is not for want of experience that I cannot grow them here and I am therefore refraining from advising others what to do, each enthusiast must follow their own idea and probably may solve the difficulty better than the writer.

There is still time to burn up the rubbish left over from the past season's operations and wise gardeners will take advantage of this for every trace of vegetable refuse left on the ground creates a refuge for vermin that will cause damage next spring. Burning this refuse removes the source of danger and the other is a very useful addition to most gardeners.

Most of my readers will readily understand that it is a little difficult for the next few weeks to find suitable subjects to write about, as most horticultural matters, at least for insurance, will be at a standstill, but I would be glad indeed to answer any inquiry that may come along, as one never knows just what the other writer may be considering.

CANADA'S SAVEMILLS
OTTAWA, Oct. 24.—With respect to the number of employees in the sawmilling industry, the Canadian statistics department has issued a report showing that the industry is in a position of expansion and capital investment is coming thick. The products of the sawmilling industry, in addition to lumber, include pulpwood (round and sawn), shingles, railway ties (sawn), joists, box sashes, slabs and edgings, veneer, particle, staves, poles, spoolwood and heading.

Car Now For Every Eight Canadians

Ottawa has been doing some calculating, and the statisticians have come to the conclusion that if every automobile in Canada would hold eight people, then everybody in the Dominion could ride at once. In other words, there were 230,000 motor vehicles registered at the end of last year, or one for every eight persons in the province.

Ontario led in the per capita column with one for every 3.8 persons in the province. Ontario may have lost its lead, but statisticians have the record. The Ontario officials discovered that there were 294,372 miles of highway open for traffic in the Dominion, and that Saskatchewan led with 124,829 miles. Alberta was next with 92,428, and Ontario was third with 52,732 miles.

It is thus very noticeable that the province with the greatest number of cars is far from having the greatest mileage of roads on which to use them. Which circumstance, commented Hon. Leopold St. Laurent, minister of highways for Ontario, to say in a recent address. He illustrated his point with the remark that if all the motor vehicles in average daily use in Ontario were placed end to end they would stretch a distance of 110 miles.
